Summary

As an independent college student at Caraga State University, I have honed a versatile skill set encompassing effective communication, critical and logical thinking, and editing proficiency within the realm of technology. Recognizing the necessity of acquiring knowledge and competencies crucial for success in this field, I am diligent and self-assured in my abilities in editing, computer maintenance, and basic computing skills.

My journey has been marked by memorable experiences, including participation in an Information Communication Technology (ICT) Work Immersion during Senior High School and active involvement in the Philippine Red Cross Organization. I am committed to continuous growth through the study and exploration of emerging technologies, aiming to leverage these capabilities to secure lucrative positions within the industry.

Throughout my endeavors, I have attained significant achievements, such as crafting my first-ever Personal project website with topics related in introduction to Computing using Markup Languages (HTML and CSS), as well as programming in Python and C Programming languages.
